CONGRATULATIONS MUNRO HONEY!

Inducted into the Lambton Agricultural Hall of Fame!

For 110 years, Munro Honey & Meadery has been making a buzz in Lambton County.

The hall of fame celebrates contributions of people who made a significant contribution to agriculture in Lambton County, provincially, federally and quite often internationally, said Joanne Sanderson, chair of the Lambton Agricultural Hall of Fame. The Bryans family has taken what was a honey and bee business from their father and "they've built it, they've expanded it, they've created whole different value added products to their honey," They contributed a lot to the community. They've created some attraction to [the] small village of Alvinston because people go there for different reasons. They've brought recognition to Lambton County and the community through their mead."

Lambton County pork producers Jim Duffy and Jim Goodhand are also 2024 inductees into the county's Agricultural Hall of Fame for their contributions to the industry on a local, provincial and federal level.

The inductee reception will take place on July 13 at 1:30 p.m. at the Brooke-Alvinston Community Centre.

Something to think about...

If it is important to you..... You will find a way.

If not..... you will find an excuse!
